Executive Summary:

With record-low inventory levels, rising aircraft values, and widespread capacity constraints across the aviation industry, buyers looking to complete an aircraft purchase in 2022 were encouraged to begin planning far earlier than in previous years. The article explains how inventory shortages, financing delays, maintenance bottlenecks, crew availability challenges, and the expiration of 100% bonus depreciation created urgency for buyers researching private jets for sale, business jets for sale, and light jets for sale, including a Gulfstream G550 for sale, Challenger 350 for sale, Citation Mustang for sale, and Phenom 300 for sale. For those evaluating how to buy a private jet or how to sell a private jet, partnering with an experienced private jet broker and private jet expert was essential to navigating one of the most challenging transaction environments on record.

Key Takeaways:

- Aircraft inventory shortages significantly extended transaction timelines throughout 2022.
- Financing, maintenance, and crew training delays created additional obstacles for buyers.
- The pending expiration of 100% bonus depreciation increased year-end purchasing activity.

Notable Comments:

“Make no mistake, you must treat Q3 how you would normally treat Q4 in 2022, because everything will take longer.”

“It takes roughly 180-240 days to find and close on an airplane for our clients.”

“Airplanes are unobtainium in this crazy market.”
